A Cal OES Telecommunications Assistant Chief and ACS Staff from MAR-2 (Mutual Aid Region 2) and MAR-3 (Mutual Aid Region 3) will deploy MIGU-2 (Mobil Interoperable Gateway Unit 2) from San Mateo County and MIGU-3 from Shasta County to support the International Big Sur Marathon April 26, Law Mission# 2015-LAW-8866.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Weather of Concern

Another round of showers and thunderstorms is expected during the day today. Another weak shortwave will approach from the northwest while the low over Southern California continues to aid in sending moisture over the region. The models are indicating possible showers and isolated thunderstorms reaching the Valley this evening.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A high pressure system has produced blustery northerly winds at the coast today. Instability over eastern Mendocino County may produce a few late day thunderstorms over the mountains.

Medford Weather:

A cold front will move slowly inland today. The front will bring showers, but rainfall amounts will be on the light side. Cool and showery pattern continues into Friday as the upper level trough moves overhead.

Reno Weather:

The overall pattern will remain active into this weekend with chances of showers and thunderstorms each day through Saturday. Drier westerly flow returns by the beginning of next week decreasing the potential for showers. After a cool period, temperatures warm above seasonal averages by the middle of next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Near or slightly below normal temperatures will continue through Friday with low clouds near the coast. A cold front will move through the district on Saturday bringing a chance of rain. High pressure is forecast to return on Sunday for warmer and drier weather.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

Sacramento Weather:

The threat of afternoon mountain showers and/or thunderstorms will continue today and Friday with activity continuing overnight into the Valley tonight and Friday night as two separate upper disturbances move through Northern California. Dry weather returns Sunday and the first part of next week.

Hanford Weather:

Low pressure will slowly move east today keeping a threat of thunderstorms to parts of the area. A second low pressure system will pass across the area Friday and Saturday before high pressure becomes established on Sunday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Isolated showers and thunderstorms will develop once again this afternoon mainly in the mountains but could drift over the Los Angeles and Ventura County valleys. The central coast may have light rain or showers on Saturday along with gusty northwest winds. High pressure will build in Sunday through early next week bringing a significant warming trend and breezy conditions to the area.

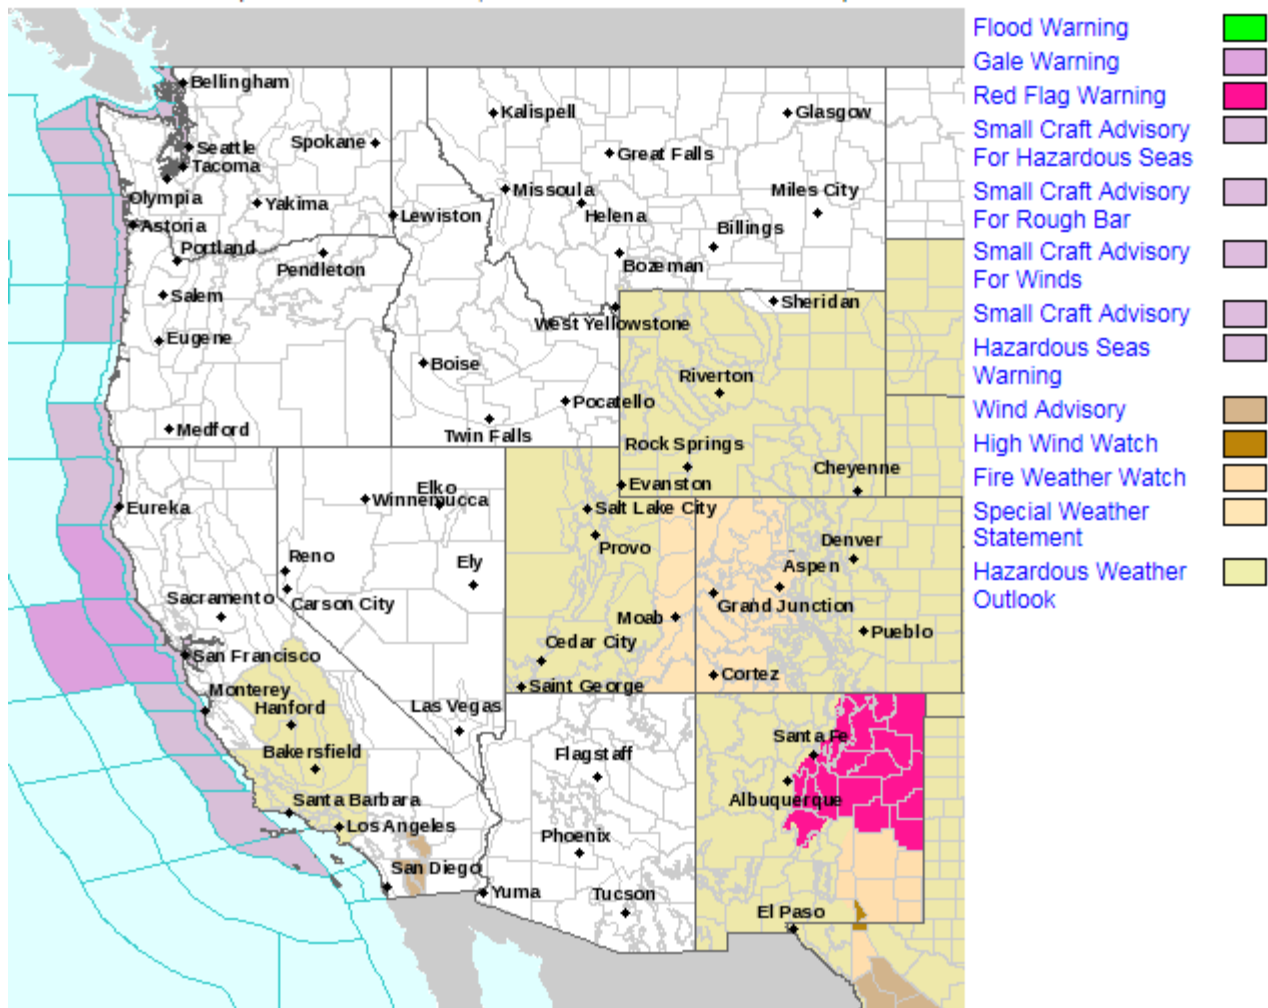

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Periods of clouds and cool weather will persist through Saturday due to a series of disturbances moving off the pacific. Scattered showers are possible at times as well most in the mountains where isolated thunderstorms are also expected. Strong and gusty westerly winds will develop today in the mountains and adjacent desert slopes. It will be dry and warmer early next week as high pressure builds in over the region.

Southeast California Weather:

A series of pacific weather disturbances will move through the region today through Sunday resulting in below normal temperatures. A chance for showers will also develop later today and tonight and again Saturday night. A much drier and warmer air mass will return to the Region Monday through Wednesday.
